FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

We are indebted to a respectable Friend for the loan of several numbers of "The Dumfries and Galloway Courier," one of the best conducted papers published in Scotland, from which we have selected the following Miscellaneous Articles:—

SUICIDE, COMMITTED BY A BRUTE ANIMAL.

To the Editor of the Dumfries and Galloway Courier.

Sir,—A few days ago, when taking a ride, before dinner, round the lawn, in front of the house at Friars Carse, in company with another gentleman, we perceived a sheep on the opposite side of the river Nith, belonging to the flock of a respectable farmer on the estate of Dalswinton, separate from the rest of its companions, and in seeming perfect health, boldly advance towards the banks of the river. It then dashed into the water, and having proceeded nearly to its depth, without swimming, it immediately put its head under water, leaving its back only visible while in the act of drowning. While writhing in the agonies of death (which were visible to each of us from the convulsive motions in its back, which remained during the whole period above water) we expected every moment to see it raise its head, but no!—Bent on self destruction, it kept its head firmly under water, until the convulsive throbs became less apparent, and until life was totally extinguished. Now, sir, I should be happy to know what name any person would affix to the act of this animal. Many I know, will be ready enough to inform me that there are some diseases peculiar to sheep which induce them mechanically to run into water. On this observation I shall only remark, that from the most accurate information received from the proprietor of the sheep in question, he had been among his flock only about an hour before the accident happened, and that all of them appeared in the most perfect health. What disease, pray, is it, which induces too many human beings of both sexes to dash into the Serpentine river, as well as other rivers, and there remain until the vital spark is extinguished? It has unfortunately fallen to my lot to see a scene of this kind, but I will venture to say, that no person ever saw suicide more deliberately or more determinedly committed by any human being than it was by this brute animal.—I am Sir, your most obedient servant,

An Observer of Actions.

23d Jan. 1819.

CAUTION TO SWEARERS.

About a fortnight since two young men, one named Joseph Cowlett, a sailor, and the other a coal-porter, in company at a public house, engaged, for a pot of beer, to try which could swear the most diabolical oaths; when Cowlett, after using the most abominable expressions for a short time, became exhausted, and could not utter a syllable, and has remained speechless ever since, a living example to those who take God's name in vain. [Norwich Paper.

A remarkable fact occurred in the park of Lord Grantley at Wonersh, near Guildford, a short time since. A fawn drinking, was suddenly pounced upon by one of the swans, which pulled the animal into the water, and held it under until quite drowned. This was observed by the other deer, in the park, and did not long go unrevenged; for shortly after, this very swan, which had hitherto never been molested by the deer, was singled out when on land, and furiously attacked by a herd, which surrounded and presently killed the offender. [Times.

A mittimus was last week signed to commit to Southwell prison, John Gobbitas, late of Laxton, huckster, for stealing fowls. The delinquent having one hand cuffed, with the appendage of a leg chain, was delivered to a deputy constable for safe conveyance to the above mentioned place; however, John, with great adroitness, contrived to mingle with his discourse such a proportionate quantity of gin, &c. so as to overtop the brighter faculties of his keeper. Arrived at Southwell, by well-feigned pretences persuaded him to alight at a public house, when, under the pretext of warming themselves he made poor Mr. Deputy so miserably drunk, that he picked his pocket of the key of his manacles, set himself at liberty, and absolutely trammelled his sleeping guardian with the same, and got clear off! [Lincoln paper.

Atterbury.—Atterbury, bishop of Rochester, when a certain Bill was brought into the House of Lords said, among other things, "that he prophesied last winter this Bill would be attempted in the presen Session, and he was sorry to find that he had proved a true prophet." My Lord Coningsby, who spoke after the bishop, and always spoke in a passion, desired the house to remark, "that one of the right reverend had set himself forth as a prophet; but, for his part, he did not know what prophet to liken him to, unless that furious prophet Balaam, who was reproved by his own ass." The bishop, in a reply, with great wit and calmness, exposed this rude attack, concluding thus:—"since the noble lord hath discovered in our manners such a similitude, I am well content to be compared to the prophet Balaam; but, my lords, I am at a loss how to make out the other part of the parallel; I am sure that I have been reproved by nobody but his lordship."

Cabbage versus Wine.—A French journal observes, that the cabbage is a sovereign remedy for curing intoxication from wine, and that it has even the power of preventing it; for we are informed, that by eating a certain quantity of cabbage before dinner, we may drink as much wine as we please, without experiencing any inconvenience. This property of the cabbage is mentioned by Aristotle and Theophrastus, who are of opinion that it proceeds from the antipathy which the vine shows for a cabbage. If a cabbage be planted near a vine, the latter retires a great distance, or dies. Hence it is concluded, that the vine, owing to this aversion, allows itself to be overcome by the cabbage, Be this as it may, the phenomenon is indisputable, and the recipe, which was declared to be effectual by the ancient Egyptians, is now universally adopted in Germany.

Butter.—The following is given as an improved method of preventing the bitter taste which butter has at this period of the year, from cattle feeding on turnips, cabbages, leaves of trees, &c.: Boil two ounces of salt peter in a quart of water, and put two or more spoonfulls, according to the quantity of milk, into a full pail, before milking; if this is done constantly, it will prevent the taste of turnips, but it will not be effected if even once neglected, This has been proved by twenty years experience, and if it does not succeed, the farmers may rest assured that the fault arises from the neglect of the dairy maid."

We learn with pleasure from a respectable gentleman in Manchester, that wherever gas has been introduced into manufactories, no case of epidemic has yet appeared; and that in one particular instance a boy employed in a cotton mill, exposed to the dust of a confined room, became very asthmatical, and being removed from his situation, and appointed to light the gas burners in the mill, he was very soon restored to perfect health.

"The United States ship John Adams, capt. Wadsworth, is here. She has been at Jamaica and Campeachy; and off Vera Cruz, but was not allowed to enter there. She will sail for Norfolk in a few days, and is only waiting an answer from this government to an application for some American prisoners, who are implicated in piratical charges. [Courier.

"April 5.

"The enclosed price current of the 1st inst. quotes some few articles of American produce higher than our market affords, which I have noted at foot—every thing except lumber seems to be a dull and difficult sale—and strange to say, that notwithstanding the extreme depression of the markets throughout the United States for colonial produce, our exports during the last week have rather advanced—prime coffee is extremely scarce, the brokers are asking 24½ dollars—Muscovado sugars of really good quality, 17rs and scarce—Box brown 14 a 16rs—Whites 24rs—Molasses 9½rs. Refer you to our general price current for further quotations.

"The steam boat continues to ply between this place and Mantanzas, and meets with considerable encouragement.

"I have not yet heard when the John Adams leaves us, probably in a few days. This is the first American sloop of war that has been here for some years—her arrival excited considerable curiosity. How proud would the Americans feel to see our Franklin, Washington, or Independence pay us a visit; we hope one day or other to see this gratifying sight."

Rice 6½ dolls. great and sudden fall, Flour steady at quotations—Phil. sup. 17 a 18 dollars; do Richmond 16; New-Orleans 15½. Godfish rather dull. Lard, a glut.

ALEXANDRIA:
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 21, 1819.

It has often been remarked, that in proportion as fanaticism gains ground in a nation, the moral purposes of religion gradually disappear. In this country, while the yells of the tabernacle assail the ear in every direction, vice prospers; and that worst of crimes, murder, increases in number and atrocity. There was a time when the tragedy acted the other day at Darien would have plunged a whole nation in horror, and called up vengeance from every quarter—But when murder is put into the creed of fashion, and cutting of throats is practised upon principle, what shall we say for the religious condition of our country?—True religion produces very different fruits from those we are so often called upon to taste.

When fools or bad men argue upon the impossibility of avoiding this kind of murder—for, murder shall I ever call it—I would ask them how it happens that women of fashion never find it necessary to tilt? That they can at times hate each other with great energy—that some of them can growl as surly as mastiffs, and be as peevish as cats, and be, as Shakespeare somewhere says, "Belles in their parlours, wildcats in their kitchens, saints in their injuries, devils being offended"—and that their humors are full as nice, and their passions as strong, as those of the other sex, every one knows. Yet the sense of decency preserves them from the practice of personal violence.

If we look back to the Romans, we shall find no duelling, such as we boast of, among them.—They, the thunder bolts of war, were averse to it. The few duels they had were of a kind that still remain monuments of their patriotism and virtue,—such was the battle of the three Horatii with the three Curatii—and such that of Manlius Torquatus with the Gaul that challenged the army. These duellists were national enemies—subjects of different princes—a sort of fighting representatives, chosen, like David and Goliah, to decide the controversy of armies. The contests too were allowed by public authority—and undertaken for the benefit of their country—but as for one citizen's cutting the throat of another about private disputes, the Romans were strangers to that method of perverting justice. When Milo killed Clodius upon the high road, though there was no such thing as a challenge; though Cicero proved it no more than a rencontre; yet because there was a formal misunderstanding between them, neither the rhetoric of the greatest orator, nor the known valor and virtue of the culprit could prevent sentence being passed upon Clodius. And it was so extravegant an outrage upon the manners, laws and moral feelings of that nation of heroes, that it makes a prominent incident in their history. The fact is, that they were too valiant to imagine that their courage could be suspected; and they loved their country too much to violate its laws.

As to the plea of custom, nothing can be more futile or contemptible. For what is a bad custom but a wrong rendered worse by obstinacy and vicious perseverance.—But the custom our duellists now follow is a custom of their own making. The practice of men's riting themselves by the sword, was introduced in Europe by the Lombards, the Saxons and the Normans, who at that time had neither knowledge nor brains to guide them to any better way of deciding a contest. Though they were, to be sure, among our multifarious ancestors, they were a very unpolished, uncouth kind of beings, and I do not see any thing very tempting in them, much less in the paganism which they professed, or the ignorance with which they were clouded, to induce rational beings and christians to follow their example. He that would follow them in every thing, in their housekeeping, dress, habits, eating, drinking and amusements, would be more likely to pass for a brute than a gentleman. If we are bound to implicit submission to, and to follow antiquity without any exception of judgment, why do not those gentlemen go to the full length, and feed on meat, and lodge in caves, and go half naked? Why do we not vindicate ourselves by tryal ordeal—plunge into scalding water to prove our innocence—and hop over heated ploughshares blindfold."

Besides, bad and ignorant as they were, in those days, they prescribed pleasures to the evils of their customs. The barbarity of their duel was restrained and bound up to certain forms of law. The occasions upon which they fought was of high importance—either to wipe off imputations of treason, or for the prosecution of appeals of murder, or for the trying of titles to land. It never occurred to them to make provisions for the honor of sharpers, gamblers, wenchers, or filthy grog, dram, julip, or mint-sling drinkers—they recognized no such sparks as those about whose pernicious practices I am now writing.

The men who first established duelling on principle, were but just risen from the lowest heathenism, and were altogether undisciplined in life. Their reason was yet in the ore, and their understandings were as low as their morals. They were just fit for sturdy slaves, and their condition enabled their princes to mislead them, or to control and indulge them as suited their views. They had sufficient authority and power to misguide their consciences, and to inflame their vindictive passions or to excuse them. The writ of combat was made out in the king's courts; and the whole of the quarrel was under the direction of the government. It was none of their way to be killed in hugger-mugger, and secretly steal a stabbing as we do now. If, without this lawful permission, any person fell in a quarrel, the survivors suffered the punishment appointed for murder.—And though the practice was sanctioned by law, the church severely censured it.

We understand that Way and Scott, the persons who robbed Mr. Fitzhugh's store and Mr. Shekels' tavern, and who made their escape from the prison of Washington, a short time since, have been taken in Norfolk, under assumed names; and arrived in the city on Saturday, in the Steam Boat. [Messenger.

VALUABLE INVENTION.

Mr. Adam Stewart of this city has invented a machine for making bricks, which renders unnecessary the tedious process of preparing the clay by wetting and making it into the consistency of mortar, moulding and drying. This machine may be so constructed as to make about two thousand bricks per hour, ready to be put immediately into the kiln, much neater and more compactly formed than is practicable in the common mode; and it is believed that not more than a single horse power will be requisite to produce this effect.

As a description would give but an imperfect idea of this ingenious and useful invention, a MODEL of the machine will be exhibited at the Merchants' Coffee House to-morrow from ten 'till twelve o'clock in the forenoon, and from three 'till five in the afternoon, and during the same hours on several successive days; where the citizens are respectfully invited to see the machine in operation.

A WARNING TO FARO-TABLES.

We stated a few days ago, the critical case of a coloured man, whose commitment to the Penitentiary perhaps depended upon the turn of a card. We stated also that two other coloured men had been sent on to the Circuit Court, for further trial, on the ground of their having actually exhibited (that is, according to the interpretation of the Hustings Court, actually played the game.)

The trial of these two men came on a few days ago before the Circuit Court, held by Judge Brockenbrough, sitting in this City. The two men, whose names are Jackson and and Newell, were arraigned for exhibiting a Faro-Table, and it being proven by credible evidence, that they had sat at the table, turned the cards, played with the by-standers, and won or lost money, the jury found themselves called on by the injunctions of the law to bring in a verdict of guilty. These two men will be consigned to the Penitentiary for a twelve-month, to expiate the misdemeanor of playing at the game of faro. If we are not misinformed, these will be the first victims to the law upon this subject.

We have every respect, which is due to the Legislature of our native state, to the judge who presides, and the jury who convicted. We have no respect for those unhappy criminals, whose characters at best are entitled to no esteem. We have no sort of doubt, that the evidence suited the fact, and the fact suited the law. But we deem it a public misfortune that such men should be the first examples under a law of a new character in the criminal code of our state. That men of color, two men who cannot probably read or write, men who perhaps have never read, who cannot read the law, nor ever heard of it, who might have supposed the utmost punishment was a fine, but not a commitment to the Penitentiary, that such poor wretches as these, should have fallen the first victims to the law, is, to say the least of it, singular and unfortunate. We do not murmur at the dispensation of justice; it is rather the dispensations of fortune, which causes our regret. Such, however, is the influence which fortune sheds over the affairs of men, from the highest to the lowest things! These men were defended, and they were well defended; but the evidence and the law were too hard for them.

DISCOVERY AND METHOD OF DESTROYING THE CORN WORM.

The farmers in Virginia, have long been annoyed by the ravages of a worm, which is to be traced early in the spring by its destructive effects upon the corn, while it is young and the stock tender. In this stage of its growth, this pestiferious insect, usually makes its appearance. Being an enemy to distinction, it applies its tooth to the part of the stock nearest the surface, and levels it with the ground. From the circumstance however of its again speedily putting forth, it has attracted much less attention than it would otherwise have done. It never recovers from the shock it has received; but its wounds being no longer observable, the cause that produced them is lost sight of, and forgotten. Tho' a remarkable difference in the size of the stock, is plainly discernable over many of our fields, where the land is known to possess equal strength and richness of soil, and the ear itself to be inferior, yet it would seem, that the farmer is not unfrequently at a loss to account for it.

May not so striking a difference be reasonably attributed to the cause already stated? Is it not a fair inference, that the vigor of the plant must have been greatly impaired by being cut off, no matter at how early a stage of its growth? Is it then, presuming too much, in tracing its probable effects even to the year? And is it not rational to conclude, therefore, that it rarely, if ever, recovers from the debilitating shock it has received?

The discovery of the source from which their propogation is derived, has been made by a farmer of Henrice—and is the result of much observation and pains.—There is to be found upon most of the farms in Virginia, a weed which is commonly known by the name of the Hog-weed. Upon the body of this weed, near the surface of the ground, there is a small bulb or knot. On opening of this, it has been discovered to contain a small white worm. In the spring of the year, the lands are flushed and the weeds turned in; but the worm is seldom destroyed, owing to the weeds not having thoroughly rooted, or the ploughing been made sufficiently deep to prevent the insect from working its way through to the surface. The spring sun soon penetrates the earth to the distance at which they lay, and warmed into activity by it, they are not long in setting themselves free. Released from captivity, they immediately commence their destructive operations, which are persevered in, until the rapid growth of the stock has secured it from the venom of their attack.

The method recommended for destroying them is, to fallow the land in the fall, which you intend putting in corn, instead of the usual practice of doing so in the spring. By this means they will be effectually destroyed. Since the adoption of this plan, my informant believes he has sustained but little, if any, injury from them.

Perhaps the subject may not be unworthy the attention of the farmers generally in Virginia. With the view to some possible good, which may result from them these hasty observations are respectfully submitted to the public eye,

Blacking for Boots & Shoes,

Superior to any ever offered to the public.

ROBERT COCHRAN,

No. 48, North Fourth-street, next door to the Green Tree Inn, Philadelphia.

WITH confidence offers to the public, his superior Portable and Liquid blacking, so much admired and approved of, which is manufactured by himself only.

This blacking possesses every desirable quality, being of an oily nature, it preserves the leather perfectly soft to the last, and keeps it from cracking—it is a jet black, affords a most superlative polish, entirely free from any offensive smell, and so clean as not to soil the whitest muslin or any other substance it may chance to run against, and will keep in any climate—it has a peculiar advantage in being put up in a portable manner, and may be packed without possibility of risque, with the nicest clothes or goods. The Portable Blacking is much adapted for gentleman residing or travelling in the country, where materials for making Blacking is not to had, and as for cheapness and elegance, far exceeds any ever imported or manufactured in the union. Where is sold as above, the beautiful Chinese Liquid Blacking, for ladies morocco boots and shoes, which makes the oldest morocco boots or shoes appear the same as when new. Sold wholesale at the manufactory, as above.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensels and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirious of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—It would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or
